A New Haven despatch to The Bulletin on Tuesday evening said:

The identity of the man whose body was found lying beside the railroad tracks in Guinford several days ago was probably established today as that of Jamos J. Nolan of Norwich. The body will be exhumed tomorrow so that a positive identification can be made.

"Thomas Alecarn of Norwich called on Chief Cowles of the local police force and told him that in company with Nolan he boarded the Federal express at New London, and that somewhere between that place and New Haven, Nolan had left the car and probably either fell or jumped off the train."

Things are being rushed along at the Johnson wharf by the Bigelow-Harvimon Construction Co. On Sinday a hurry up call was made for teams to haul away the coal left stored in the old sheds. This was necessary in order to make room for the load of cement which came to the wharf Saturday by lighter.

The ground for the foundation of the main building of brick has been broken and is almost ready for commencement of the foundation work, which will be of stone. As soon as the work can be accomplished, the building at the entrance to the wharf will be changed over to form general offices for the construction company, and, as the building is in good condition, it will probably be retained afterwards as offices for the manufacturing, which will occupy the plant.
